

Even More Membership Benefits

A Network of Peers is one of the most prized benefits of STC membership. Networking with other technical communicators, both in-person and online creates opportunities to build your career.

STC Chapters offer in-person connections and programming through local meetings, conferences, social events, and newsletters.

Special Interest Groups (SIGs), organized by topics of interest rather than geographic location, accelerate your learning chain in specialty areas, with webinars and virtual meetings. SIGs give you connections with members across the globe.

Corporate Value Program Companies who employ five or more technical communicators are eligible to apply for the Corporate Value Program (CVP). This program enables the company to save on member dues and enroll each employee as a Classic Member of STC.

Promoting the Profession STC continues to work with the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics to elevate “technical communicator” to a distinct profession. Companies use BLS data to determine salaries for full-time employees, which, in turn, determine market rates for contractors and freelancers. The ongoing efforts of STC directly impact your income.
